Editorial Values and Standards

Mission Statement

The magazine is dedicated to topics about civil society actors and activities, covered by actors from the ifa network. It is part of a digital platform ifa provides for global civil society, dedicated to the values that ifa stands for. Communication on this platform pursues the idea of an open society, regarding freedom of speech, tolerance and respect for others.

Accuracy

Every effort is made to assure that the content is accurate, free from bias, in context, and that all sides are presented fairly.

Do No Harm

When we gather information and report about people, we do not intend to do harm to anyone with our work. Thereto, we attempt to use non-discriminatory language that does not affect people’s sense of dignity.

Fair Play

We respect the rights and the safety of people involved in our reporting and observe the common standards of decency.

Independence from External Interests, Propaganda, and Financial Interest

We do not use our media to promote external interests. We are determined to avoid any kind of propaganda or ideology. The only reason for reporting is defined by our mission statement.

Intelligibility

We attempt to use language that is precise and commonly understood. We intend for our reports on science and art to be understood by everyone.

Editing Process

We select the content published on our social media platform. Editors work with contributors on their pieces, and a curator or a board of curators decides which production will be published on the platform.
